Woodbury Salterton C of E Primary has provided a wealth of evidence that shows it is working at the SILVER level of the SMHA. The school has worked tirelessly within the Federation to support the promotion of strategies to ensure positive mental health and well-being for both children and adults.

It is most proud of the work it has done to support staff, particularly throughout the COVID-19 pandemic. Weekly feedback takes place to ensure staff are secure and confident, with a truly 'open door' policy that means colleagues are better able to support each other. Staff make good use of the Education Support website and signposting within school gives staff greater access to resources to maintain their own well-being.

Professional development opportunities have resulted in a school-wide approach to changing the remit and focus of the behaviour policy so that it is now aimed at promoting a relational approach, rather than based on sanctions. It was recognised that staff well-being was affected by behaviour within the classroom, so it was timely to develop a new approach. It fits well with the Christian ethos of the school, as it provides space and opportunity for de-briefing and supervision. The school has recently been accepted into the Babcock Relational Practice and Policy Project and all staff are excited to see how this will benefit all within the school walls. Close working with staff and a genuine commitment to promote and sustain well-being has ensured staff buy-in, after initial resistance.

Strategies suggested by the 10 A Day programme have been enthusiastically received by pupils and adults alike, and the Mental Health Ambassadors now plan their own activities, thereby giving ownership to the pupils to set their own agenda for supporting one another. This has also fed directly into Pupil Voice as all children are involved, thus developing a wider audience. Scrapbooks are kept by the classes so that they are a resource for pupils to refer to and plan from, thereby developing pupil independence and a sense of commitment to the overall ethos of the school.

The school has an Ethos Lead, who ensures consistency and progression of mental health strategies across the school. They work across the five schools in the Federation, sharing good practice and focusing on global issues so that pupils are knowledgeable and well-equipped to handle any anxieties around climate change and pollution. A practical project is the recycling of soft plastics; the school has involved the local MP and pupils are dedicated to ensuring they are able to do their bit to limit the use of plastics and recycle when they can.

Spirituality has been very much a focus to support and promote mental health and well-being for all, as the school believes that developing a more spiritual approach complements pupils' developing self-awareness and sense of accountability to themselves and others. This also supports the families more generally, alongside involving parents and carers with the 10 A Day programme so that they can reinforce good practice at home too.

The school works closely with the other schools in the Federation, sharing good practice and resources. The learning community feels like 'a family' and meetings of staff across the schools are held regularly to ensure consistency and a shared vision. It also works with the diocese to share what works and how others can benefit from their work. Within the area, working parties are set up to promote, develop and support excellent mental health and well-being working practices with other schools and community organisations.

I therefore have no hesitation in recommending that Woodbury Salterton C of E Primary School is awarded the SILVER level of the SMHA programme.
